

Why is Natural Penis Enlargement So Popular Now?

It may just be due to the Internet.

By: AJ "Big Al" Alfaro

Add inches to your penis!" Ads like these are everywhere...on the net, in your email inboxes, in men's magazines, on the radio, and even on TV, you've no doubt seen countless ads for penis enlargement.

There's programs, pills, devices, surgery, hypnosis, and the list goes on and on. Why are more and more men looking to increase the size of their penises and improve their lovemaking techniques? Simply put, people have taken a more liberated attitude towards sex.

Since the Women's Liberation Movement, ladies have felt free to speak their minds on what they want. Despite what some popular "professionals" say about a woman only really feeling the first few inches, most women agree that a larger penis is better. Not only does a bigger penis appeal to women because "bigger feels better", but a longer penis can be used in many more sexual positions than a smaller one.

Women (and men) are speaking up about what they want. From magazines (like Cosmopolitan) to television shows (like "Sex and the City") and films, people are being bombarded with subtle (and not so subtle) references to penis size... and like it or not, the consensus is that "size does matter!"

I'd also like to take a moment to mention that most gay men also find a large penis more appealing in a partner. As men, they know that bigger is definitely better.

So what can you do about it? If you're not as well endowed as you'd like to be, you have a lot of safe and cost effective options available to you. My personal suggestion is to get on a sound program before you think about purchasing supplements or devices. A good penis enlargement exercise routine will help you establish the foundation that you need, and even a very basic routine will give you noticeable size increases in a relatively short amount of time.

Hope this helps!

Big Al